This Week in Wabash

Hello, Wabash,

Happy Monday. I hope your week has gotten off to a great start. I've been enjoying the weather a fair amount the past few days. It's been a bit rainy one day and a bit too hot the other, but yesterday was just right. (Not unlike the "Goldilocks and the Three Bears.") Anyway...

This week, I wanted to call your attention to two big projects which will be published in this coming Saturday's paper.

The first is the senior photos of all the graduating students at Manchester, Wabash, Northfield and Southwood high schools. We do something similar each year, but this is the first time since I started here in 2019 that we're publishing names and photos of all the graduating seniors and not just the valedictorians and salutatorians. (We're still going to be publishing those, of course, but those stories have been coming out as we get the information. We've already had front-page stories on the top students for Wabash and Manchester high schools. I anticipate we'll have stories on the top students for Southwood and Northfield in soon, as well. I'm just waiting for the final information.)

The second is the team photos for all the spring sports for all four high schools. We have published these pretty much each season of the school year since I started. (One for fall, one for winter and one for spring.)

I also wanted to use this opportunity to shout out our two freelancers who have been covering local sports for the past school year. Greg Dannacher is a photographer and you've no doubt seen his work consistently covering games this school year. He also attended all the spring sports media days and took photos and names of all the players. Clay Maxfield is a photographer and reporter who has also covered these teams all season. Like Greg, he'll be covering the upcoming tournaments. Clay will also be doing season-ending wrap-ups for the spring sports teams. I appreciate the hard work these two put in week after week to make sure our local athletes are getting the attention they deserve.

Well, that's all I have for you today. Have a great rest of your day.

Best,

Rob
